Pipeline to be reworked around ancient bones

Near Bethune.
TransGas says dig will back up and go deep, won't disturb site where human remains were found Oct. 15

A major pipeline project in Saskatchewan is to be modified after ancient bones were found at the dig site.

TransGas, the pipeline subsidiary of SaskEnergy, says the redesign will minimize any impact to newly discovered cultural lands near Bethune, northwest of Regina.

"Typically, pipelines are done using a shallow trench and that's about six feet of a hole that is made. The pipeline is lowered in, the ground cover is put back in and on we go," SaskEnergy spokesman Dave Burdeniuk said Thursday.

"We're not going to do that now for the location where the remains were discovered. We're going to back up further away and then we're going to go deep."

The company will use trenchless technology to bore down between depths of nine metres and 45 metres for almost a kilometre underneath the site, Burdeniuk said.

TransGas was installing a transmission pipeline to supply natural gas service to a new potash mine site when bone fragments were unearthed Oct. 15. Archeologists have determined the remains are human and estimate the bones are more than 1,000 years old. There was no indication before work began that there was anything culturally significant along the pipeline route, said Burdeniuk.

"We knew there were a couple of sites close and those were flagged and the crews were told to avoid those.

"But we had no idea that there were these human remains, so this is a way that we can get the project accomplished, but do it in such a manner that we're not going to disturb the surface or anything that might be remaining still near the surface." THE CANADIAN PRESS

First Nations consultation

Representatives from Carry the Kettle First Nation and elders from the Nakota Nation were at the site Wednesday for a sacred blessing ritual and to further examine it.

- TransGas said it will work with Chief Barry Kennedy and elders to determine the most appropriate and sensitive way to deal with soil already disturbed.

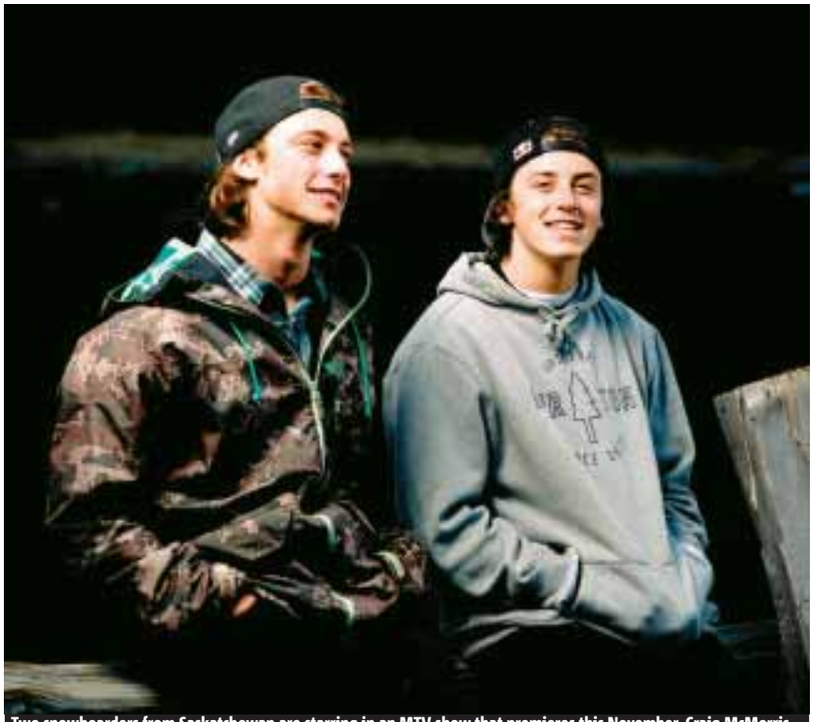
Sask. boarders star on MTV



Two snowboarders from Saskatchewan are starring in an MTV show that premieres this November. Craig McMorris, left, and his 19-year-old brother Mark are prepared to show the world what they've got in Season 1 of McMorris and McMorris. COURTESY OF MTV

A tale of two bros. McMorris and McMorris is a new reality show that follows brothers Mark and Craig of Regina as they snowboard around the world

jacob.morgan@metronews.ca

Mark and Craig McMorris have gone from the flatlands around Regina to some of the tallest mountains around.

And in November, the brothers will reach a new high as their show McMorris and McMorris premieres on MTV Canada.

"I am very excited. We met with Red Bull Media House … over a year ago and pitched the idea," said Craig, the older McMorris. "Now that we've filmed all eight episodes, it's pretty crazy and I can't wait for it to go live."

The premise follows Mark and Craig as they head off to different countries and continents, hanging out with friends while going through the rigours of competitive snowboarding.

"Usually when you're travelling for snowboarding, people only see the one run, they don't see all the behind-the-scenes stuff," said Craig.

The locations include Aspen, Colorado for the Ex Games and Cancun, Mexico for spring break.

"We try to keep a really nice balance of staying competitive, staying sharp and staying in shape, but also having a little bit of fun," he said.

Both brothers have made big names for themselves, as Craig has boarded on the Canadian national team and Mark has won high-profile contests.

Craig said the series is a great opportunity to demonstrate their skills and represent their hometown.

"We get to show the world this is our home, this is what can come out of Saskatchewan and it's one of the most beautiful places on the Earth," he said.

McMorris and McMorris premieres Friday, Nov. 1 at 9 p.m. EST.

City moves for tax exemption to spur downtown housing

City administrators say a proposed $7,500 tax exemption cap for downtown homeowners will encourage development of smaller apartments and condominiums, while providing a variety of housing options.

"Predominantly, what we're seeing (downtown) are large one- and two-bedroom condominiums," Jennifer Barrett, senior housing planner with the City of Regina, said on Thursday at a city hall meeting of a new municipal housing commission. "What we wanted to see was a shift more toward smaller units that would support singles that enjoy living downtown."

The idea behind the cap, Barrett said, is to provide a longer tax incentive for smaller units, while providing the same incentive for larger units but for a shorter period.

During its first meeting, the housing commission approved the proposal. However, it must be passed by council before taking effect.

Mayor Michael Fougere said the incentive scheme represents the city's desire for more "diversity" in downtown housing. "(The residential incentive) program was altered to encourage more modest housing that otherwise would not be built there," he said. "It is more expensive to build downtown than in the suburbs … that's why the (incentive program) is there."

In addition to Fougere, the commission includes councillors Bob Hawkins and Bryon Burnett, as well as developer Terry Canning and Tim Gross of Saskatchewan Housing Corp., among others.

The mayor said it's important to seek the "expertise" of a diverse array of stakeholders in a bid to ease Regina's housing crunch. "We fashion new policies on housing, (which) we feel is much more strongly done by having this commission," he added. MARCO VIGLIOTTI/METRO

Call for urgency

Anti-bullying report to be released soon

Education Minister Don Morgan says an anti-bullying report will be made public soon, probably during anti-bullying week in November.

The report is being worked on by Saskatoon MLA Jennifer Campeau.

Morgan says the government's response will come out at the same time as the report. The Opposition says the government shouldn't wait to release the report in anti-bullying week, which runs Nov. 17 to 22.

NDP Leader Cam Broten says there are children in Saskatchewan who fear going to school, so urgent action is needed. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Murder trial

Fingerprint points no finger: Lawyer

The lawyer for an American accused of killing a Saskatoon woman says tests on a fingerprint found at the crime scene were inconclusive.

Morris Bodnar was granted an adjournment in his client George Allgood's trial last month to re-test the print.

Bodnar says the sample wasn't good enough to conclude whether it belongs to another person. It was previously found that the print did not belong to Allgood.

Allgood is charged with the murder of Susan Reinhardt — the mother of his son — and the attempted murder of her boyfriend. THE CANADIAN PRESS/CKOM

Woman, teen boy arrested over armed robbery

A 34-year-old woman and a 15-year-old boy wanted in an armed robbery in southeastern Saskatchewan have been arrested.

Police in Saskatoon say the pair was discovered when officers were called to an apartment building on Wednesday to check on another woman.

She was safe. Officers realized that a second woman and a teen, who were also in the apartment, were suspects in the robbery of a business in Yorkton.

They will be transported to Yorkton to face charges. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Transit plan prompts time concerns

'Master plan.' Residents like proposals, but want to see some action

ROSS ROMANIUK
ross.romaniuk@metronews.ca

After getting a good look at Regina's transportation plans, some residents say any improvements could yet be way, way down the road.

Jeannie Maw, an avid cyclist, likes city hall's proposal for street bicycle lanes in the transportation master plan, as presented for the public on Thursday at Cornwall Centre.

She pointed out, though, that "they've been talking about bike lanes since the 1980s," and have since created some on Smith and Lorne streets covering a four-block stretch.

Maw is pleased by a proposal for cycling lanes on long sections of 15th Avenue and Elphinstone Street.

"What's happening here, if they really get it done, would be great," she told Metro.

"Let's hope they do it within the next five years, because I can't wait much longer."

A man viewing the plans at the mall echoed Maw's concerns, suggesting that all the talk should come with a commitment to action.

Jeannie Maw likes the city's ideas for cycling lanes, but wonders when she'll ever see them. ROSS ROMANUIK/METRO

Anti-government ideology becoming a growing concern

Sovereign citizens?
Libertarian-inspired philosophy said to pose threat to officer and public safety

A Calgary police van remains in front of a rental home that a Freeman-on-the-Land follower had claimed as an embassy in September. BILL GRAVELAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Training for frontline officers and better information sharing between police and government agencies can help protect law enforcement officials from potentially aggressive "sovereign citizens," says a newly declassified briefing to Canadian police chiefs.

The presentation, prepared for a meeting of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, calls the libertarian-inspired philosophy "a growing concern" that poses a "threat to officer and public safety."

Enforcement agencies are becoming increasingly wary of sovereign citizens, members of the Freeman-on-the-Land movement and other like-minded people who resist police and government authority. Adherents say they shun violence and merely want to live free of government-imposed shackles.

However, police say those who espouse the ideology have been involved in numerous violent encounters with law-enforcement and government employees in the United States and, to a lesser extent, in Canada. Freemen commonly claim they do not require a driver's licence, insurance or vehicle registration, police say. And advocates frequently assert a right to have weapons for self-protection, among other things.

Abduction case sends aftershock

Roma. Negative reporting on minorities has re-emerged via recent cases: Council of Europe's Commissioner for Human Rights

A Roma woman in Bulgaria has undergone DNA testing and faces preliminary charges of child selling as authorities investigate if she is the mother of a young girl found living with an unrelated couple in Greece, authorities said Thursday.

Though the tests have yet to prove Sasha Ruseva, 35, is the biological mother of the girl known as "Maria," the woman's admission that she once left a baby behind in Greece opened her up to a formal investigation.

Ruseva acknowledged to Bulgarian TV that she had been questioned about the girl, believed to be five or six years old, who was found during a raid for drugs and weapons in a Roma camp in central Greece last week. Ruseva said she gave birth to a girl while working as an olive picker in Greece.

The child's case gained global notice.

Ruseva said she wanted the girl back if tests prove she is the girl's mother.

But she denied taking any money for giving up her baby to another Roma family years ago.

The preliminary charges filed against her allow authorities to start an investigation into whether money changed hands for the child.

Greek authorities took custody of "Maria" after a prosecutor present during the camp raid noticed the blond, blue-eyed and pale-skinned girl looked nothing like the couple raising her.

A DNA test confirmed she was not related to them.

Ruseva said she recognized the Greek Roma couple in the "Maria" case as the same people with whom she left her child. Ruseva said she gave birth to a girl while working as an olive picker in Greece "several years ago," but that she had to leave the child because she didn't have enough money to take her home.

Ruseva has had eight children. "I intended to go back and take my child home, but meanwhile I gave birth to two more kids so I was not able to go back," Ruseva said on Bulgarian TV, insisting that she did not get paid for giving up the girl. The "Maria" case has spurred concerns about child trafficking within the Roma community. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roma people in the spotlight

Child trafficking?

The "Maria" case has spurred concerns about child trafficking within the Roma community, and cries of racism, as well. In an episode apparently inspired by the Greek case, two young blond, blue-eyed children were taken by police in Ireland from their Roma parents, who had different complexions. But the girl and boy were returned to their families Wednesday after DNA tests determined the children were rightfully theirs. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Madeleine McCann case reopened

Portugal's public broadcaster says prosecutors are reopening the police investigation into the disappearance of British child Madeleine McCann, after a review of evidence found new leads in the case.

The public prosecutor decided to reopen the case after "new indications" emerged, though the prosecutor gave no details in a report seen on Radiotelevisao Portuguesa.

The case was closed in 2008 because no crime was detected.

The girl vanished during a family vacation in southern Portugal's Algarve region in May 2007, just before her fourth birthday.

A team of detectives from northern Portugal began reviewing the evidence two years ago.

British police have also been sifting through the case files and said they have identified new avenues of investigation. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sex-assault claim. Sask. woman who felt ignored by police turns to YouTube

A Saskatoon woman has turned to YouTube to have her voice heard after she says her allegations of sexual assault were dismissed by police.

In a video uploaded to YouTube on Tuesday, 29-year-old Rebecca Campbell levels the accusations against her co-workers at a local restaurant.

Campbell alleges the ordeal began 10 years ago after an acquaintance took advantage of her. "We had been at a party together and at the time I was actually homeless," Campbell told Metro. "He had offered to let me crash on his couch for a couple days, so I left the party with him and he attacked me and raped me."

Although she said she originally went to the police, she feels she was dismissed.

A spokesperson for the Saskatoon Police Service, Alyson Edwards, said upon seeing the video, an officer from the sex-crimes division contacted Campbell.

"We wanted to reach out to her right away so we could resolve any issues or concerns that she has and we wanted her to know that we do take her complaint very seriously," said Edwards.

Senate

Reform plan ruled unconstitutional

The Harper government's most recent attempt at Senate reform has been declared unconstitutional in a stinging court ruling rendered Thursday.

The Quebec Court of Appeal has released an opinion that the federal government had no right to create Senate elections and set term limits without seeking provincial approval.

Ongoing scandal shows deep rifts in Tory ranks

Getting nasty.
Debate continues to rage over bid to oust disgraced senators Duffy, Wallin and Brazeau — and now it's personal

The Harper government's bid for summary execution of senators Mike Duffy, Pamela Wallin and Patrick Brazeau has turned into an agonizingly slow soap opera that is exposing a nasty — and increasingly personal — family feud within the Conservative caucus.

Debate over government motions to suspend, without pay, the three erstwhile Conservatives continued to rage in the Senate for the third straight day — with no end in sight.

Thursday's debate saw Marjory LeBreton, former government leader in the Senate, fire back at Duffy for alleging she was part of a "monstrous" conspiracy to intimidate him into accepting a secret deal to pay back ineligible expenses or face being disqualified from sitting in the Senate.

She variously described Duffy's claims as "utterly preposterous," "blatant falsehood" and "stretching credulity."

And, although LeBreton didn't directly question Prime Minister Stephen Harper's judgment in appointing Duffy to the upper chamber, she revealed that she was never a fan of the former broadcast journalist, who hosted a daily show on federal politics until his elevation to the Senate in 2009.

"I sometimes found myself … frustrated by his style of journalism, trading as he did, more often than not, on gossip and the latest hot rumour," LeBreton told the upper chamber.

"And sometimes I was so disgusted that I felt like putting my foot through the television set."

Sen. Pamela Wallin is surrounded by security as she arrives at the Senate on Parliament Hill on Thursday. ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

When anyone complained, Duffy would say, "It's showbiz," LeBreton said, implying that Duffy has taken the same approach to justifying his role in the Senate expenses scandal.

B.C. trailer-park nightmare finally over for one resident

'Overjoyed.' Stephen Chalmers has a new home thanks to donors from across the country

KATE WEBB
Metro in Vancouver

Stephen Chalmers relaxes in his new 1999 trailer with his dog, Spaghetti, after surviving nearly six weeks in a Surrey, B.C., trailer park with no power.
JENNIFER GAUTHIER/METRO

As Stephen Chalmers stepped into his bright, spacious, new 1999 fifth-wheel in Langley, B.C., on Thursday, he went silent and just took it all in.

Then, he burst into tears.

"I live in a palace," he said, his voice quivering with relief after having survived nearly six weeks in a run-down Surrey trailer park without power.

Chalmers, who suffers from multiple mental illnesses including depression, was pushed to his limit when the landlord, K.B. Properties, failed to hire a health-and-safety co-ordinator for the demolition of the neighbouring Beladean Motel.

The demolition crew hit live hydro wires, and ever since then the Beladean Trailer Park has been running on unreliable generators — and even those the landlord failed to provide until the city got involved.

Chalmers wanted to leave, but his leaky 1989 trailer was too old and broken down to be accepted at most other trailer parks.

Realizing how desperate the situation was, his sister, Marilyn Chase, started a crowdfunding campaign on Fundrazr.com with Metro's assistance.

Within five days the campaign hit its goal of $5,000. Metro then partnered with the Travelhome trailer dealership in Langley, plus a very generous anonymous donor who heard Chalmers' story on Classic Rock 101 and offered another $5,000, to buy him a refurbished, family-sized 26-foot trailer.

On Thursday Travelhome staff also surprised Chalmers, who lives on disability, with plenty of home furnishings, such as pots and pans, towels, bedding and gift certificates for groceries.

"I'm overwhelmed, overjoyed, ecstatically happy," Chalmers said, before adding he wanted to send a message to the donors across the country and as far away as Norway who made it all possible.

Chalmers' message to donors

"I don't pass out the word love very often, but the amount of love that you people showed me is overwhelming, and for that I thank you and I love you." Stephen Chalmers

Chalmers has found a new, quiet trailer park to live in, and is thrilled that he will be reunited with his beloved shih tzu, Spaghetti. He has been unable to live with her for the past two years because his old, leaky trailer wasn't safe for her.

"It means that I'm not totally alone," he said. "The love that that dog shows me is absolutely undying and unconditional."

Several local politicians, including two members of provincial parliament and Surrey city councillor Barinder Rasode, showed up to the key handover to wish Chalmers well, and to promise him they will continue to fight for harsher penalties for negligent landlords.

"As we head into the winter and you look at serious issues like people not having electricity or heat, we are working on it right away," said Rasode.

"We're hoping in the next couple of weeks that we'll have a recommendation (on tougher bylaws) from our bylaws department."

Others still without power

Eight residents with nowhere else to go still live at the Beladean Trailer Park in Surrey, which has been running on generators for nearly six weeks since an inadequately supervised motel demolition knocked the power out on Sept. 14.

- Program manager of emergency shelter Hyland House Peter Fedos conducts homeless outreach in the area on behalf of B.C. Housing.
- He said the city, the Ministry of Social Development, and Options Community Services, of which Hyland House is a part, are in constant contact about the situation.
- "Everyone is trying to ease the stress occurring for the residents at the trailer park," he said.
- "The Hyland House Mobile Outreach team is working with people there to see if we can get them re-housed in collaboration with B.C. Housing and everyone who is at the table supporting us."

Wildrose leader hedges on question of climate change

Wildrose party Leader Danielle Smith
THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Alberta's Opposition leader is again under fire for refusing to take a stand on whether climate change exists.

Danielle Smith is being "weasely" and "disingenuous" for promising to fight greenhouse gases while refusing to say if she believes they are a problem in the first place, NDP Leader Brian Mason said Thursday.

"It's a dodge," Mason said.

"What she is saying is kind of weasely words. It's trying to have it both ways (by saying), 'I personally don't know if there is climate change or not, but we're going to oppose (greenhouse gases) because other people think so.'

"That's not leadership. Tell us what you think, Danielle, and then stand up for it."

Smith made her comments Wednesday while taking questions from reporters on party resolutions to be debated at the Wildrose annual general meeting in Red Deer on Saturday.

Two of those resolutions deal with taking steps to reduce greenhouse gases.

On Wednesday, Smith stressed the party wants to do something on emissions because the global community demands Alberta do so.

"We know we have to do something because we have obligations nationally and internationally. We also have our customers who are demanding that we produce our resources in a way that is more environmentally responsible," said Smith.

But Smith said the party will not issue a resolution on whether climate change exists. She said that would be unfair to do so.

"I don't expect our members to be scientists," she said.

Quoted

"I don't think people are interested in hearing what politicians have to say about scientific matters. You can ask scientists that." Wildrose leader Danielle Smith

"I just expect them to pass policy that allows us to give a pretty clear indication of what we would actually do if we were government.

"I'm hopeful that our members will endorse us taking some clear action to reduce greenhouse gases and toxic emissions."

When asked if she believes in climate change, she replied: "I'm not a scientist.

"I don't think people are interested in hearing what politicians have to say about scientific matters. You can ask scientists that.

"My obligation is to make sure we have a policy that makes sense."

Mason said the climate change question strikes at the heart of Wildrose credibility.

Loblaw joins Primark in paying out victims

Damage control. After deadly factory collapse in Bangladesh, where Joe Fresh produced cheap clothes, company pledges to help victims

Grocery giant Loblaw Companies Ltd. says it will provide long-term financial assistance to the victims and families affected by a deadly factory collapse in Bangladesh in April.

The company said Thursday the compensation will go to those who worked at the New Wave Style factory, which produced clothing for Loblaw's Joe Fresh clothing line. The company will also pay three months in wages to workers until the longer-term funds kick in.

The New Wave Style factory was one of five manufacturing plants in the Dhaka plaza that collapsed, killing more than 1,100 workers on April 24.

Loblaw did not disclose the total compensation amount.

In addition, the company has joined with British clothing retailer Primark to provide financial assistance to workers of all retailers in the factory plaza.

Loblaw pledged: "Should the other brands not step forward and join in this funding, we will join Primark and immediately contribute to the payment of three months wages for the approximately 3,600 individuals involved, regardless of the brand apparel that was being produced in their workplace."

Third-quarter earnings

Potash Corp. hit hard by weaker prices, lower sales

Potash Corp. is reporting third-quarter earnings of 41 cents per share on $356 million in net earnings.

That's down from 74 cents per share, or $645 million, in the same period last year as a result of weaker prices and lower potash sales volumes.

The Saskatoon-based company says offshore investments in Jordan, Chile and Israel contributed $85 million to earnings for the quarter.

Key markets — particularly large buyers in China and India — delayed purchases or were reluctant to accept major shipments against existing contracts.

As a result, shipments from North American producers fell to one of the lowest third-quarter totals in recent history.

SCENE

Synopsis

In Cormac 'No Country for Old Men' McCarthy's screenwriting debut, The Counselor, he tells a gritty story of a greedy lawyer (Michael Fassbender) in over his head after dipping his toe in the narcotics trade with drug lord Reiner (Javier Bardem) and his sociopath girlfriend Malkina (Cameron Diaz). When the deal — smuggling 625 kilos of cocaine from Mexico to Chicago — goes south, the counselor finds his life swirling out of control. Spiraling around this grim vortex are womanizing middle-man Westray (Brad Pitt), prison inmate Ruth (Rosie Perez) and the counselor's long-distance girlfriend Laura (Penélope Cruz).

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Less talk, more action

The Counselor.

Existential speeches bog down a promising dark crime drama

Richard: Mark, The Counselor is the feel bad movie of the year. Bleak and hopeless, it's a crime drama that examines the reasons and consequences of crime instead of focusing on the crime itself. It's a stylish cautionary tale about the worst of human behaviour driven by greed, lust and hubris; a non-action, action movie where most of the fireworks are in McCarthy's dialogue. Luckily actors like Bardem, Pitt and Fassbender are there to keep the fuse lit. What did you make of it?

Mark: I'm convinced there's a decent movie embedded in this overstuffed, overwritten film. First, let's take out all the portentous, existential speeches delivered by even the most tangential characters. Then, we could cut about two-thirds of Michael Fassbender's pained reaction shots. He looks like he's got indigestion after being force-fed the script. Oh, and get rid of the opening soft-core scene between him and Penélope Cruz. Then, there might be a grimly sardonic movie on the order of No Country for Old Men. But as it is, I could only enjoy it for the acting, the scenery, and Bardem's collection of 80's Versace shirts.

RC: I liked it more than you, but only by one of Javier Bardem's crazy Brian Grazier hairs. Talky to the extreme, the entire movie is built around dialogue that sounds like it flowed from the hardest boiled crime writer out there, which I guess McCarthy is now that Elmore Leonard is working from his celestial typewriter. Catch phrases abound — "You don't know someone until you know what they want," for example — but it is wordy. Sometimes brilliantly so, but the pacing, particularly in the first hour, will be thought of as hypnotic by some, slow by others. My main disappointment was Diaz, who I didn't think could deliver the dialogue. You?

MB: Diaz was OK because she looked the part and that got her through some clunky line readings. But back to the script... the plot is revealed slowly, in layers, which will not be to everyone's liking. You just know you are in the company of some very bad people; you're just not sure why. This mysteriousness kept me interested for awhile; then I started counting the speaking parts and calculating the budget. Even at scale, it must have mounted up. And semi-famous actors keep showing up for only one scene, never to be seen again, like Ruben Blades. And Richard, was that John Leguizamo in an uncredited scene?

RC: Yes! It's cameo city!

MB: Fits right in with the movie's aesthetic of more is more.

Comedy

Bad Grandpa

Director. Jeff Tremaine

Stars. Johnny Knoxville, Jackson Nicoll

It's juvenile and tasteless but let's not pretend the stunts the Jackass team cook up aren't daring. In Bad Grandpa, Jackass mastermind Johnny Knoxville spins a narrative into the mix, playing a sex-obsessed octogenarian who teams up with his pre-pubescent grandson to pull provocative pranks on the unsuspecting public. Although the "story" ultimately suffers on behalf of the gags, Knoxville and young Jackson Nicoll are extraordinary, especially when they push buttons in a little miss princess pageant.

STEVE GOW

Action/Drama

All is Lost

Director. J.C. Chandor

Stars. Robert Redford

Robert Redford plays a sailor on a solo yacht trip on the Indian Ocean. When his boat collides with an abandoned shipping container he must use all his resources to survive. The actor is in every frame of this film and although he only speaks a dozen or so lines, manages to create a compelling persona of a man hell bent on survival against increasingly difficult odds. All is Lost is more audacious than it is entertaining, but it showcases Redford's effortless star power. Alone and figuratively naked, he holds the screen for the entire 106 minutes.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

50 Shades has its brand new Christian Grey: Jamie Dornan

Wait, Jamie who?
Dornan.

Oh, from Game of Thrones?
No, from Once Upon a Time, that TV series with fairy tale characters. He played the Hunstman in the Enchanted Forest and Sheriff Graham in Storybrooke, the show's alternative universe.

Where else have I seen him?
Possibly Marie Antoinette, if you were one of the six people who saw that. Or from magazine ads. He was a Calvin Klein model and the face (and body) of Dior Homme. But British audiences know the 31-year-old as the serial killer on The Fall, a hit BBC series starring Gillian Anderson. And gossip fans know him as Keira Knightley's ex. They dated for two years.

So how'd he get cast as Christian Grey?
He has abs. He has experience (sexing up the lady mayor on Once). And he probably came cheap. Sons of Anarchy star Charlie Hunnam, who has a higher profile, was reportedly to be paid only $125,000 before he dropped out. Expect Dornan to get that or less.

Word is he's Northern Irish. Does he have a sexy accent?
A bit.

So is he single?
Alas, no. He's married to singer Amelia Warner, who records under the name Slow Moving Millie. They're expecting a child soon.

And does Twitter approve?
It's early. Fans are probably still busy Google Image-searching his name to form an opinion. But the popular @BieberSuperArmy account was among the first to weigh in with: "This will be Christian Grey, his name is Jamie Dornan, let's take a moment to thank God." METRO

For winemakers, fall is all about harvesting. Brewers, meanwhile, turn to the creation of limited edition craft ales — many of which take their names and flavour cues from the season.

Local brews are hotter than Hades, with their fans applying a reverence for their stylistic differences that's arguably surpassed only by those who appreciate fine wine.

What gives beer the edge when it comes to the "cool factor" is that consumer attitude regarding adding flavour elements to beer is much more open minded than those of their counterparts in the wine world.

That gives breweries carte blanche to add inspiration to their autumn ales, with many focusing on October's official gourd — the pumpkin.

The output of most small, regional breweries is sold close to home, so visit them, or hit your local retailer, to see what's being brewed in your own backyard.

Montreal's McAuslan Brewing's St-Ambroise Citrouille The Great Pumpkin Ale (4 by 341 ml, $9.95 - $10.95) is available across the country.

Infused with cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg, clove and, of course, pumpkin, it balances its vegetal expression with an undercurrent of subtle spice.

PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

We all scream for scary treats

By the time you've carved an army of pumpkins, costumed your pint-sized ghouls and purchased bushels of candy, time for cooking up spooky grub may be in short supply. These treats don't require much time or energy so you can still do the Monster Mash.

Vampire Doughnuts

Arrange a stack of honey-glazed doughnuts on a large serving tray. Use bamboo skewer to poke two fang holes in top of each, then dribble red gel food colouring coming out of the holes and down the sides of the doughnuts.

Goblet Grave

Head to craft store and pick up a silicone skull and crossbones ice cube tray. Fill each cavity with plain Greek yogurt, then use offset spatula to smooth the tops and remove any excess yogurt from the tray. Freeze until solid (overnight is best).Let the cubes soften at room temperature for several minutes, then remove the ice cubes from the tray. Arrange cubes in a small bowl set over a larger bowl of crushed ice. Serve alongside goblets of grape juice.

Candied Apple Craniums

Wash and dry 6 apples. Insert large candy stick. Set aside. Place 12 ounces of white candy melts in heat-safe bowl. Set bowl over saucepan of simmering water. Stir until the candy has melted. Dunk each apple into candy melts, spooning up sides and over the top for an even coating. Set coated apples upright on waxed paper. Use a rolling pin to roll out Tootsie Rolls until flat. Use a paring knife to cut round eyes and a heart-shaped nose from the flattened

Tootsie Rolls. "Glue" the eyes and nose (mount the "heart" upside down) to the apples using piping gel or a bit of purchased frosting.

Doughnut Spider

Set a chocolate glazed doughnut in centre of large serving platter. Place chocolate cake doughnut against it. Glazed doughnut forms spider's body; the cake doughnut is the head. Place 2 chocolate doughnut holes on top of cake doughnut to form eyes (use a dab of frosting to hold them in place). Top each doughnut hole with dab of white frosting, then gently press a chocolate chip into each. For legs, arrange three sets of three chocolate doughnut holes coming off of each side of the "body" doughnut.

CFL. With West supremacy on the line, Riders running back says he's focused on his own game

MARCO VIGLIOTTI
marco.vigliotti@metronews.ca

The Saskatchewan Roughriders head west Saturday night to face the league-leading Calgary Stampeders at McMahon Stadium in what could be the CFL's most high-profile regular-season matchup.

But in a game touted as a possible West Division final preview, most of the focus has been on the clash between the teams' running backs after Roughriders star Kory Sheets said this week that he's a superior talent to Stamps counterpart Jon Cornish.

"He's going to have a good game or I'm going to have a good game," Sheets said on Thursday at Mosaic Stadium about the rivalry between the two running backs, noting he isn't concerned with any reaction from Cornish, who has mostly remained mum.

"What they (the Stampeders) got going on over there is not going to affect me," he added. "I make sure I focus on here, I focus on the Saskatchewan Roughriders."

After snapping a four-game losing streak earlier this month, the Riders have won their last three games, including a 35-14 victory at home over the B.C. Lions last weekend.

The Stamps have kept pace, however, stringing together a four-game winning streak of their own.

Something has to give on Saturday in Calgary.

"It's going to be a big game," Riders head coach Corey Chamblin said of the matchup.

"Like I told the guys, I don't think I need to hype you up (to face the Stampeders)."

With a victory, the Riders could still catch the Stamps for first place in the West — if they beat Edmonton in their last regular-season game next weekend and Calgary falls to B.C.

Kickoff on Saturday is at 5 p.m.

Young Leafs defender staying in bigs

Morgan Rielly will stay with the Leafs beyond this weekend when they face the Blue Jackets Friday and the Penguins Saturday. CLAUS ANDERSEN/GETTY IMAGES

Morgan Rielly is looking for a place to live and a roommate.

The Maple Leafs' prized rookie defenceman, all of 19, got the word Thursday morning that he had made the team and won't be returning to the Moose Jaw Warriors. Or, more to the point, the team was going to keep him past the nine-game tryout teenagers get without burning the first year of their three-year entry-level contract.

"It's a pretty good feeling," said Rielly. "But I have a lot left to prove. I have to keep working hard and keep getting better."

Quoted

"We're not guaranteeing the player is going to be here the rest of the year."

Leafs coach Randy Carlyle. If Rielly plays in 40 games this season he can speed up his eligibility towards unrestricted free agency to age 26.

The Leafs have asked Rielly to get a roommate, rather than live on his own.

"We would like him to find a roommate and move in with somebody," said Carlyle. "We feel it's imperative that a young player, 19 years old, live with somebody."

Sidney Crosby lived with Mario Lemieux. Right now, Nathan MacKinnon is living with J-S Giguere in Colorado. With the Leafs, Tyler Bozak and Phil Kessel are roomies.

Rielly hadn't asked anyone yet Thursday. "I don't want to live with any old guys," he said. "Wait and see what happens."

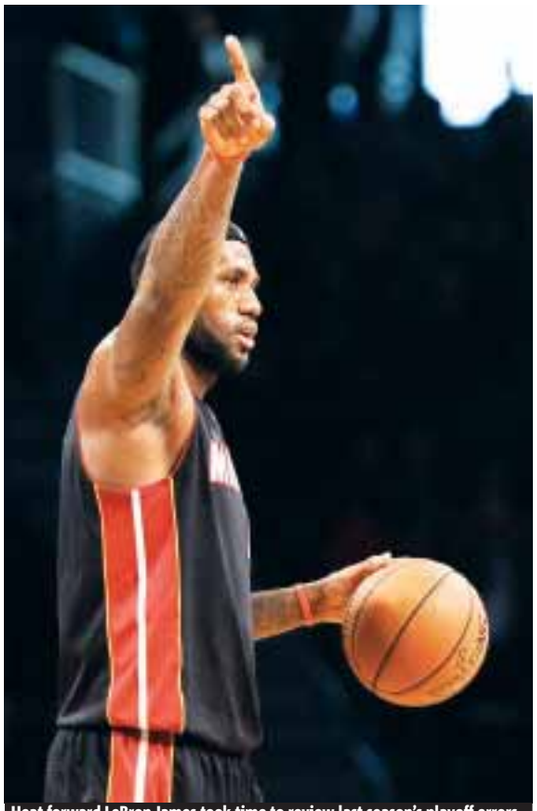
King James insists he's still got plenty of work to do

NBA. League's MVP says he took time out of busy summer to develop basketball IQ



Heat forward LeBron James took time to review last season's playoff errors while on vacation with his family. MADDIE MEYER/GETTY IMAGES

LeBron James was desperate for some time away from basketball, so he packed up his family for a vacation this summer. Sun and sand. Rest and relaxation.

Pen and paper, too.

Considered the best player in the game, James remains obsessed with getting better. That's why, on the verge of starting his 11th professional season and fourth with the Miami Heat, James fully expects the 2013-14 campaign to be his best one yet. He knows there's no shortage of challengers aiming to knock both him and his team off their respective mountaintops.

"I'm nitpicking now, obviously, at my own game," James said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I want that. I want to be uncomfortable. I want to continue to push the envelope and get to a point where I feel like I'm trying to master everything. Now, I can't be the greatest at everything. There's better rebounders than me. There's better passers than me. There's better scorers than me. But I want to be able to maximize my potential in everything I do."

On vacation, and with a notepad at his side, James broke down every Heat playoff game, every moment of post-season matchups last season against Milwaukee, Chicago, Indiana and San Antonio.

"I push myself," James said. "There are ways I can get better. I would write down the exact time, the exact play, the exact quarter, the plays where I could have did something better."

At six-foot-eight and 250 pounds, a marriage of size and speed that many covet, the reality is that James probably is not going to get much better physically. Where James is getting better, those around him say, is in the thinking department.

Raptors extend contracts of Ross, Valanciunas

The Toronto Raptors have exercised the third-year team options on the entry-level contracts of centre Jonas Valanciunas and guard Terrence Ross, extending the deals through the 2014-15 season.

The Raptors had until next Thursday to exercise their option on both players.

The seven-foot, 257-pound Valanciunas joined the Raptors after being selected fifth overall in the 2011 NBA draft and spending the 2011-12 season playing overseas.

He was named to the 2012-13 NBA all-rookie second team after finishing the year ranked third among rookies in rebounds (6.0), blocks (1.26) and field goal percentage (.557). Valanciunas also ranked seventh among rookies averaging 8.9 points in 23.9 minutes.

A native of Utena, Lithuania, Valanciunas became the fifth rookie in franchise history to start on opening night.

Ross, a six-foot-seven, 197 pound forward, was selected eighth overall in the 2012 draft. Last season he posted averages of 6.4 points, 2.0 rebounds and 17.0 minutes in 73 games. He shot .332 (65-196) from beyond the arc and finished fifth among rookies in made three-pointers.

Manning back after injury scare

Fantasy football owners and Denver Broncos fans can rest easy: Peyton Manning is back.

Manning returned to practice Thursday after the Broncos held him out a day earlier because of a minor ankle injury he sustained in Denver's loss at Indianapolis last weekend.

It was his first skipped practice since joining the Broncos 19 months ago, the result of the pounding he took in his homecoming at Indianapolis last weekend along with the coaches' desire to give him a day's rest as the midpoint of the season approaches.

Jake Virtanen BRAD WATSON/CALGARY HITMEN/HO-THE CANADIAN PRESS

Climbing the rankings. Hitmen winger shooting for big draft year

Jake Virtanen is not recognizable to every Canadian junior hockey fan, but NHL scouts definitely know his name.

The 17-year-old Calgary Hitmen winger is expected to be among the top selections in next summer's NHL draft.

"I'd be very surprised if he wasn't," said Washington Capitals Western scout Terry Richardson. "In my opinion, he's a top 10, top 15 for sure. I don't get to see all the kids, of course, actually in Eastern Canada, but this kid's good. He's big. Strong. He's what everybody wants."

Virtanen, a New Westminster, B.C., native who grew up in the Fraser Valley communities of Langley, and Abbottsford, is helping his cause this week, as he's a big reason why the Hitmen remain in first place in the WHL's Western Conference.

He has five goals in his last four games and recorded his first WHL hat trick in a 6-3 win over the Lethbridge Hurricanes on Sunday. With eight goals and four assists in 14 games, he continues to progress from a rookie season in which he generated 16 goals and 18 helpers.

"My 16-year-old season was pretty good," said Virtanen, who stands six-foot-one and weighs 210 pounds.

"I finished strong. I had a strong second half of the season. I get drafted this year, so (the draft) is in the back of my mind. It's obviously one of the biggest years of my life.

"So I'm really looking forward to (doing well) this season. It's a huge challenge for me."

Virtanen has not set any specific goals while he attempts to help the Hitmen reach the Memorial Cup, though he's hopeful for a chance to play for Canada's entry at the world junior tournament during the Christmas holidays. But he is eager to live up to his pre-draft billing.

NHL Central Scouting has listed him as a player to watch, ranking him among only seven WHL A-level skaters. Meanwhile, International Scouting Services has ranked him No. 4 on its list of top 2014 prospects.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You may wish that everything in your life was perfect but if it was, you would soon grow bored. With that in mind, don't get angry if little things go wrong today.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
If you have something important to say, say it now if you want your words to have impact. However, if you're critical of someone, they might be critical of you too.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
If you know what you want today, you will find a way to get it, even though you may have no idea how to get from here to there. Neptune, planet of imagination, will guide your thoughts and your footsteps.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Give yourself a break today, not least because the Sun in your fellow Water sign of Scorpio is going to bring remarkable new opportunities your way. The more rest you get now, the more you will accomplish later.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
The most important thing now is that you keep your enthusiasm level high. The planets warn that you may be tempted to take life a bit too easy and if you do then your plans will come to nothing.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
At times throughout the day you will wonder if you can believe what you see and hear. But, it's true: some people are behaving so badly you must have nothing to do with them.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You will only have time to act today. That applies especially to work and financial matters where you must follow your instincts — even if what they tell you seems strange.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Resist the urge to look back when you should be looking forward. The Sun in your sign means you can start anew, no matter how many issues are nagging at you from the past.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You may be concerned that you did not work hard enough to iron out a relationship problem and, yes, maybe that is true, but it's too late now. The chance will come again when the time is right. Stop worrying.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Why do people seem to think and speak and act in slow motion? Whatever the reason, you have to live in the same world, so try not to get uptight. Think of your blood pressure.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Your mind may be alive with possibilities but those around you seem dead to your good ideas. You don't need their help or approval. You can get where you need to be on your own.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
OK, so you made a mistake. The important question is: what did you learn from it? One thing, for sure, is that failure isn't as painful as you thought it would be. Pick yourself up, brush yourself of and keep going. SALLY BROMPTON
